Hannon Hill's Internet Open House

Thursday, January 10th, 2008 at 1:00pm -- Elizabeth Starkey

If you missed our Open House a few months ago, here is your chance to check out our Buckhead office via this internet photo tour. Just when you expected the office of a software company to be boring, we present you evidence to the contrary in Suite 2440 of Atlanta Plaza.

Upon entering our office, Laura greets our visitors at the front desk. Our waiting area gives the first hint of the unique design here. Our office is the former MTV office, which accounts for the distinctive use of angles and bright colors. The look could be described as inspired by a very modern, American approach to the art of Theo Van Doesburg, father of the De Stijl movement.

The abundance of glass walls and cutouts serving as windows and doorways adds an open feel to the office. Derek, Beth, and Brock model several of these cut-outs in Sthitha's office.

In the Board Room, we conduct our large, company-wide meetings and our weekly Free Lunch Fridays. Up here on the 24th floor, we have a fantastic view of Atlanta. Our other, smaller meeting room is the War Room, which is used for departmental meetings or training sessions.

The break room features two major elements of work-day fuel, coffee and Coke. We also keep this room stocked with snacks. Next stop: the offices where Hannon Hillians are hard at work. Dean and Syl of Sales enjoy their coffee as they discuss new potential clients. Tim, our inter-office fitness guru, shows Syl the power of the hand gym as he answers trouble tickets and other support requests.

Down in Cubeland, our extended office, Sadiq shows off his four monitors, maximizing efficiency with his web development work. Traveling between offices is a breeze at Hannon Hill. Brett demonstrates our Segway transportation device, a popular gadget among the members of our team.

We like to keep souvenirs from the people who have made us a success, our clients. The perimeter of Cubeland is adorned with pennants from each of our clients in higher education.

It's certainly not all work and no play here! As you can see, we have our share of toys to provide us with extra fun during a break from the computer. We have an authentic "Police Force" pinball machine, darts, and an executive putting green. Kevin G. and Beth demonstrate our foosball table and Michael W. and Kevin W. show off their ping pong skills.

We hope you have enjoyed our internet photo tour of the office, and we look forward to your arrival at our open house next year.
